THIRTEENTH YEAR. NO. 102.

EAST LIVERPOOL, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1897.

TWO CENTS

THESE MEN HAVE MONEY

They Want to Build a Factory In East End.

MEETING WAS HELD LAST NIGHT

The Land Company Conferred With a Number of Capitalists Who Like the Town and Are Anxious to Locate Here. Will Make Globes and Employ 150 Men.

East End seems destined to boom. The officers of the land company are now considering the proposition of a number of Pittsburg capitalists who are anxious to locate here.

A meeting was held last night at which the gentlemen were present and the details of the plan were made known. They are anxious to establish a factory for the manufacture of art globes and incandescent bulbs, and for that purpose have a capital of $75,000. The number of men employed will range from 150 to 175, and they will be a good class of citizens because they are among the best paid and most skilled glass-workers of the country.

The matter of a bonus was discussed, but not settled. However, it is known that the land company are willing to pay a substantial sum for a good manufacturing institution and the Pittsburg parties are willing to come if they can obtain it. The parties went over the ground yesterday, and today were investigating the shipping facilities and the prospects for fuel, water, etc. They like the place, and have repeatedly expressed a desire to locate here.

A name for the town was discussed at length last night, and while a number was suggested, no decision was reached. One name pleased a number of those present, and it will likely be decided upon at a meeting to be held next Friday evening at 7 o'clock, when arrangements for the land sale to be held the middle of the month will be made.

The officers are encouraged, and think the new village is bound to boom.

They Took In a Good Looking Young Stranger

AND HE RAN OFF WITH THE WIFE

They Went to Cleveland Yesterday Afternoon, and Cannot Be Located—She Left Her Children and Will Not Be Allowed to Return.

It's the same old story, a story well known in East Liverpool. It only differs from other stories, when the principal characters are an erring wife, a good looking stranger and deserted husband and children, in so far as the parties directly interested are concerned.

A month ago a young man came here from Allegheny, and found a boarding place at the home of a claymaker who is employed in a river pottery and lives in Broadway. He was kindly treated by the family and became friendly with the wife. Her husband gave her money with which to pay bills, but she put it carefully away, and is now making good use of it.

At noon yesterday the wife remarked that she wanted to go to Allegheny on the evening train, but the husband advised her to wait as he had no money. Nothing more was said, and after the husband had gone to work the man from Allegheny had a trunk taken to the station, and the wife departed with him on the next train for Cleveland.

The woman is the mother of several children, the oldest being 13. If she returns she will not be received at home. The young man is said to have a wife in Allegheny.

WEYLER MAY RESIGN.

Premier Sagasta Says He Expects Him So to Do.

IF NOT, HE WILL BE RECALLED.

A Denial in Washington That Woodford Has Delivered Another Official Note, as Stated in Madrid—Moret Ready to Apply Reforms in Cuba.

MADRID, Oct. 6.—Senor Moret, the minister for the colonies, it is semi-officially announced, has decided to apply as soon as possible all the measures which are comprised in the program of the liberals regarding the Antilles, including all that is necessary for the application of autonomy for Cuba in the form permitted by the circumstances.

It is reported here that the United States minister, General Woodford, has left at the foreign office an official note from Secretary Sherman.

When Premier Sagasta was questioned regarding the future of Captain General Weyler, he said he supposed Weyler would resign, adding that if he did not do so he would be recalled.

Senor Sagasta has called at the United States legation. His interview with General Woodford was cordial, but absolute reserve is maintained as to what passed in the conversation.

Captain General Weyler has written an official letter to General Azcarraga, forwarded before the resignation of the Azcarraga cabinet, in the course of which he declares that the condition of Cuba has improved to a remarkable degree since the date when he assumed control of the island.

The captain general says that "the country has received a fresh lease of life." He asserts that the Spanish general commanding in the eastern provinces reports an uninterrupted service of trains on all the railroads. The letter alleges that the Spanish army in Cuba is being maintained in excellent state despite the fact that the pay is six months in arrears.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—It can be stated positively that Minister Woodford has received no additional instructions from Secretary Sherman or any other government officer since he sailed for Europe. His call was either one of courtesy to introduce himself formally to the new Spanish administration or to lay before it some matter not fully outlined in his talk with the Duke of Tetuan. He bore no letter from Secretary Sherman, and it can be stated authoritatively that it is the policy of the administration to let the new Spanish cabinet become settled in office and not to press it to act hastily.

The composition of the new Spanish cabinet is the subject of considerable gossip in administration and diplomatic circles. It is felt that the three powers of the new regime, so far as concerns Cuban affairs, are Sagasta, Gullon and Moret, three names often noted in state department records in connection with previous negotiations concerning independence, autonomy and other movements at the time of the last long Cuban war. Sagasta was minister of state at the time our secretary of state, Hamilton Fish, sent to the United States minister at Madrid, Caleb Cushing, the instructions which have since become famous as laying down the policy of the United States, and the name of Gullon appears signed to one of the Spanish answers to Minister Cushing. Mr. Gullon's apparent office being that of an assistant minister of state.

As minister of the colonies, it is believed Senor Moret will take a leading part in the coming Cuban negotiations. He is well known here, having been minister of state of the colonies and also of finance. While Moret was in the cabinet during the previous Cuban rebellion, his business associate, Senor Azcarraga, came to this country as an envoy to effect a settlement with the Cubans by granting them a measure of autonomy. The envoy, acting with the Spanish minister here, Lopez Robert, sent a commissioner to treat with the insurgent president. The commissioner, Senor Zenea, appears to have been indiscreet in his negotiations, for on his way back he was captured and shot by the Spanish authorities on the ground of having carried on unauthorized negotiations with the insurgents.

Subsequently, through the influence of Moret, the widow of Zenea was paid an indemnity of $30,000, which was regarded as showing that the mission for a compromise with the Cubans was not wholly without official sanction. This incident, and Moret's recognition of the Mora claim, have made him best known in this country. The other new cabinet officers are not known to officials here, and are regarded as men prominent in the politics of the day and allies of Sagasta.

NORRIS CASE GOES OVER

Charges Made by Members of the Church.

OFFICERS PUSH THE MATTER

The Paper Was Referred to a Special Committee Who Recommended an Investigation--They Will Report Next Month When Presbytery Meets In Pittsburg.

The case of Rev. Mr. Norris, the Pittsburg minister, who was recently converted to the holiness doctrine, and who has since been preaching it at the Mt. Washington Presbyterian church, came up for consideration at the meeting of presbytery in Monongahela City, yesterday.

Hardly had the presbytery been opened before it appeared. There was a general disposition on the part of the members of presbytery to ignore the case, but it promptly came up on a vigorous petition from the officers of the Mt. Washington church itself. They had presented a petition to Mr. Norris to resign, which he declined to do. The petition was then brought to presbytery, with a statement of the facts, asking presbytery to take cognizance of the trouble.

The paper was at once referred to a special committee, constituted of Rev. Dr. George N. Johnson, Rev. Dr. Solon Cobb, Rev. C. P. Cheesman and Elders Matthew Bigger and Thomas Ballantyne. This committee recommended an investigating committee to decide what should be done with Mr. Norris.

Rev. Dr. John J. Beacom objected to having a committee visit the church, as the church had done nothing worthy of investigation. He wanted the presbytery to deal with Mr. Norris alone, as he was amenable to presbytery.

Dr. George N. Johnson then read the petition, which was signed by six elders, five deacons and four trustees, all the officers of the church but one elder, who was in sympathy with the paper, but had not signed it. Rev. Dr. George W. Chalfant thought the committee should "confer" with Mr. Norris, and not unnecessarily throw a firebrand into the church. Rev. C. P. Cheesman stood up for the report and wanted the committee to investigate the whole business, and Rev. Dr. Johnson thought the church could not be left out of account.

Rev. Dr. David R. Breed said the petition did not specify the trouble nor make charges, and he thought there was no case at present before the presbytery. Rev. Solon Cobb, D. D., held it was a respectful petition, largely signed, and must be recognized. Everything is indefinite, but all parties should be heard. Rev. Dr. J. M. Duff thought the presbytery should face the inevitable and at once realize that the main question is sure to come up.

The following committee was then appointed to handle the case: Rev. Drs. George N. Johnson, Solon Cobb, C. P. Cheesman, and Elders Matthew Bigger and J. S. Campbell. This fully launches the case, and there are indications of a long drawn out heresy case, which may run the course of all the courts of the church. This committee is to make its report on the first Monday of November at noon in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburg.

WELLSVILLE.

POLITICIANS ARE BUSY

Republican Committee Will Meet Tonight.

MAYOR JIMMY RICE WILL TALK

For the Democrats at City Hall This Evening—Weighed the Big Engine—The Christian Convention—More Good News at the Shops—All the News.

The busiest men in Wellsville just now are the politicians, and the manner in which they are working is in marked contrast with the procrastination of political leaders in other towns.

The Republicans are hard at work. The central committee will assemble tonight at A. G. Mackenzie's hall, when arrangements will be made for the meetings already assigned. The committee have found that the demand for Lieutenant Governor Jones and State Librarian Charley Galbreath is so strong in other parts of the state where their services are needed that they cannot come, but the Hon. Mr. Richards, ex-lieutenant governor, will talk to all who want to hear a good speech Oct. 12. Hon. Lorenzo Danford will also be present.

The event scheduled for tonight promises to be a good time for the Democrats. Mayor Rice, of Canton, will be the speaker, and preparations have been made for a demonstration. Everybody knows Jimmy Rice and his peculiarities, while his love for silver makes him dear to the Democratic heart.

More Good News.

The employees of the machine shops have been notified that work will now be 10 hours each day. They are in consequence happy, and business men are looking for an improvement in trade.

The amount of freight handled by the company's men is large. At Salineville there is a great deal of activity, and the mining companions are selling every pound of coal they can produce.

Liverpool Drunks.

An evil which seems to have grown alarmingly within the past few months, can be found in the number of Liverpool boys of tender years who come to Wellsville and after loading themselves with beer find their way home as best they can. Not long ago a number of them missed the last car because they paused to drink out of a bottle on the street. There should be a remedy for the evil.

The Convention.

Much interest is being manifested in the Twelfth District Missionary convention, now in session at the Christian church. Sixteen congregations were represented at the meeting yesterday, and a number of strangers came in today. The program for each session is interesting, and a large number of local people attend. The convention will close this evening.

The Big Engine.

The big engine, about which so much has been written and said, continues to attract a great deal of attention. It was weighed yesterday, and found to tip the beam at the modest figure of 175,000 pounds. When coaled and ready for a trip to the lake, the monster weighs 197,000 pounds.

New Members In Prospect.

The Sons of Veterans held an interesting meeting, last evening. The camp is in a most prosperous condition, and the prospect for an increase in the number of members is good.

A Change.

B. F. Pettit has been made manager of the electric light plant, and Mr. Jones, who served as superintendent, has gone to Pittsburg. The new manager comes from Ft. Wayne.

The News of Wellsville.

Doctor Mackenzie is able to be out after an attack of his old malady. Born to Mr. and Mrs. James Hayes, a daughter.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Geisinger, a son. The agitation for cleaner streets continues, and it is believed that the old condition has left Wellsville forever. Some complaint is heard because council refused to buy the sweeper.

Messrs. John R. McNutt, W. R. Lawson, H. B. Nicholson, of Wellsville, and John Smith, of Glasgow, who were summoned to appear before the United States grand jury at Columbus, returned home yesterday.

J. L. Walton, of Pittsburg, came down to look at the river at this point today.

JUST FOR A LITTLE WHILE.

Take Advantage of This; It Will Pay You.

We will make a grand rush [until Saturday night, October 2,] in business in all Summer Goods, or Odds and Ends of regular lines. They go at less than cost in order to close them out.

FOR INSTANCE.

18 pairs of ladies' serge top, kid foxed lace shoes, 65c, worth $1.25.

33 pairs of ladies' kid common sense shoes, button, 70c, worth $1.25.

MAYOR JIMMY RICE WILL TALK

For the Democrats at City Hall This Evening—Weighed the Big Engine—The Christian Convention—More Good News at the Shops—All the News.

The busiest men in Wellsville just now are the politicians, and the manner in which they are working is in marked contrast with the procrastination of political leaders in other towns.

The Republicans are hard at work. The central committee will assemble tonight at A. G. Mackenzie's hall, when arrangements will be made for the meetings already assigned. The committee have found that the demand for Lieutenant Governor Jones and State Librarian Charley Galbreath is so strong in other parts of the state where their services are needed that they cannot come, but the Hon. Mr. Richards, ex-lieutenant governor, will talk to all who want to hear a good speech Oct. 12. Hon. Lorenzo Danford will also be present.

The event scheduled for tonight promises to be a good time for the Democrats. Mayor Rice, of Canton, will be the speaker, and preparations have been made for a demonstration. Everybody knows Jimmy Rice and his peculiarities, while his love for silver makes him dear to the Democratic heart.

More Good News.

The employees of the machine shops have been notified that work will now be 10 hours each day. They are in consequence happy, and business men are looking for an improvement in trade.

The amount of freight handled by the company's men is large. At Salineville there is a great deal of activity, and the mining companions are selling every pound of coal they can produce.

Liverpool Drunks.

An evil which seems to have grown alarmingly within the past few months, can be found in the number of Liverpool boys of tender years who come to Wellsville and after loading themselves with beer find their way home as best they can. Not long ago a number of them missed the last car because they paused to drink out of a bottle on the street. There should be a remedy for the evil.

The Convention.

Much interest is being manifested in the Twelfth District Missionary convention, now in session at the Christian church. Sixteen congregations were represented at the meeting yesterday, and a number of strangers came in today. The program for each session is interesting, and a large number of local people attend. The convention will close this evening.

The Big Engine.

The big engine, about which so much has been written and said, continues to attract a great deal of attention. It was weighed yesterday, and found to tip the beam at the modest figure of 175,000 pounds. When coaled and ready for a trip to the lake, the monster weighs 197,000 pounds.

New Members In Prospect.

The Sons of Veterans held an interesting meeting, last evening. The camp is in a most prosperous condition, and the prospect for an increase in the number of members is good.

A Change.

B. F. Pettit has been made manager of the electric light plant, and Mr. Jones, who served as superintendent, has gone to Pittsburg. The new manager comes from Ft. Wayne.

The News of Wellsville.

Doctor Mackenzie is able to be out after an attack of his old malady.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. James Hayes, a daughter.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Geisinger, a son.

The agitation for cleaner streets continues, and it is believed that the old condition has left Wellsville forever. Some complaint is heard because council refused to buy the sweeper.

Messrs. John R. McNutt, W. R. Lawson, H. B. Nicholson, of Wellsville, and John Smith, of Glasgow, who were summoned to appear before the United States grand jury at Columbus, returned home yesterday.

J. L. Walton, of Pittsburg, came down to look at the river at this point today.

JUST FOR A LITTLE WHILE.

We will make a grand rush [until Saturday night, October 2,] in business in all Summer Goods, or Odds and Ends of regular lines. They go at less than cost in order to close them out.

WHY can't East Liverpool capture one necessary enterprise?

IF America's farmers can produce the

they can sweeten their coffee with the

THE selection of a postmaster by the

ANY movement which will result in a

There is but one way to attain the dehands of the people.

They are the same stereotyped nonsense
the Democratic orators of Ohio have been talking for years. The candidate should employ some good man to write him a few speeches if he finds within the next week that he can do no better.

The mere fact that Pittsburg parties are here looking for a location for a glass factory shows plainly that the fame of the city is spreading through the land.
If East Liverpool continues to increase in importance, other glass manufacturing concerns will find it to their advantage to do business in the greatest pot-

A GOOD THING.

When General Weyler packs his grip and shakes the mud of Cuba from his shoes, he will take with him the cordial hatred of every friend of liberty and enough wealth to keep him independent of the Spanish government during the remainder of his days. As a soldier Weyler has been a miserable failure; as a financier he has been wonderfully successful. Spain poured cargoes of treasure into the island, and Weyler poured much of it into his private coffers. If the stories of those who have been in Cuba during the trying times of the last two years can be relied upon, he has starved his soldiers in order that the profit might go to a favored few, and it is hinted that the confiscated fortune of many a wealthy planter has never been reported to the powers beyond the Atlantic. It matters not at this time what truth these stories contain, but history will be wrong if it does not show that Spanish supremacy in Cuba would never have been made the laughing stock of nations had it not been for dishonesty among the men who handled the queen regent's shining gold.

The Grand Jury Did Not Return an In-

LISBON, Oct. 6.—[Special]—William James, of Yellow Creek, filed a claim in court today against Squire E. W.
Hill, of East Liverpool, for $200, and another for the same amount against Constable Lyon. James charges violation of the duties of the office of each of the defendants and sues on their bond. Sept. 10, James was arrested by Lyon charged with fraudulently appropriating a cow claimed to be the property of Virginia P. Hayes, his employer. Affidavit was made before Squire Hill by D. B. Hayes that the cow was in Jones' possession, and a search warrant was issued. The animal was found on his premises and restored to Mrs. Hayes. James claimed that she had given him the cow, and when the case came before the grand jury he was not indicted. A demand was at once made for the return to him of the animal,
which he says should have been returned to him by the officials when he was acquitted of the charge. John H.
Harris and George H. Owen are defendants as bondsmen in the Hill case, and Robert Hall and R. D. VanFossen
in the case against Lyon.

TRULY A STRANGE TALE

A Mystery Cleared After Fifty-Five Years.

CAUSED BY A BANK ROBBERY

A Fanciful Writer Follows the Life of the Hermit of Dry Run, and Connects Him With One Who Has For Years Been Sought by Officers of Eastern Cities.

Not long ago some fanciful party residing at Marion wrote for the Cincinnati Enquirer what he pretended was a sketch of the adventurous life of the "Hermit of Dry Run." The question of fact or fiction matters little at this time, for the man is dead and beyond the reach of any authority, but the tale is at least interesting.

In the summer of 1842 the people of Bangor, Maine, were startled by the announcement that the Citizens' bank had been robbed of money and securities to the value of $180,000. No suspicion was attached to any of the employees, and the only clue was found in three links of a heavy gold chain which lay on the floor of the vault.

Bert Pelham, one of the keenest man hunters of the Boston force, was detailed and began work on the case. He was not long in reaching the conclusion that William Preston, a young man who had resided at Rockland, was the robber. Then began a chase which was continued through years. Preston was tracked to Boston and from there to Springfield. Thence he went to Montpelier, Vt., and the detective followed him to his hotel. A fight resulted, and when it ended Pelham lay senseless on the floor with a bullet in his shoulder and a great cut on his head.

Two months later the plucky detective had recovered sufficiently to continue the chase, and located Preston at Burlington. Preston recognized him, and hastily pulling his revolver fired. The shot missed and he ran with Pelham in close pursuit. When Preston reached Plattsburg, on the other side of the lake, his old enemy was stretched on the ice with a bullet hole in his neck.

As the story goes nothing was heard of Preston until September of 1865 when the northern regiments returned from the war. Then there came to East Liverpool a soldier whose clothes were new and clean and who expressed by his actions a desire to be left religiously alone. He remained at the hotel a few days, and then went to Dry Run near the Pennsylvania line where he purchased a plot of land and built the cabin where he lived for more than three years.

Occasionally he received visits from an old lady, but they were few and far between, and no one ever knew what words passed between them. He let everybody alone, and wanted no friends.

On one occasion when at Elkton, he was pressed by a half-drunken countryman to tell who he was and where he came from. After trying to avoid the fellow for some time, he at last became exasperated, and, drawing a revolver, told the insistent countryman he would kill him if he did not let him alone. But the verdant gentleman kept grabbing hold of the stranger, and finally received a blow from the butt end of a revolver which fractured his skull and came near killing him. After this incident all further attempts to ascertain the name or antecedents of the hermit were given up, and he was left alone, persons even avoiding the vicinity of his cabin near the river.

Not long ago he died and the story of his life was told in letters he left on a chair by his humble cot. One was directed to Bertrand Pelham, but it did not reach him for he was dead. But it did go to his son, a leading physician of Boston, who read the confession it contained with interest. It told the story of his life after the robbery. How he had followed Pelham endeavoring to kill him, and when he failed how he enlisted in a New regiment and transformed the criminal into one of Grant's best and boldest scouts.

Other letters were directed to old friends in the east who had known him before the robbery, and who had long since ceased to believe him alive. The letter addressed to Rockland, Maine, was to a relative, and he gave him his library and all his relics, which he had collected during his years of exile and when in the army, among the latter a piece of the flag in which the body of Colonel Elmer E. Ellsworth was wrapped after his murder by Jackson at the Marshall House in Alexandria. The letter makes tender reference to his mother, and states that he has lived just the kind of a life he desired, as he wanted for nothing, and had no one to interfere with him.

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

A small parcel around which one letter was wrapped contained a box, and on being opened was found to contain a heavy gold chain, with some links gone, and a piece of stout cord united the two sections. The chain was attached to a small piece of white cardboard, and underneath appeared the following in pencil:

"The missing links of this chain I left in the Citizens' bank, of Bangor, Me., on the night of Aug. 12, 1842. The chain caught on the knob of the safe door as I was leaving the bank, and I had no time to secure the broken links."

WILLIAM PRESTON.

The three links had been turned over to the Baldwin bureau, with the history of the case some years ago, and when brought out of the relic department the chain was once more made whole after being parted for 54 years.

CLOSED AS USUAL.

Although the Grocers' Early Closing Agreement Was Dead.

Last night marked the close of the old agreement among the grocers to close their places of business at 7 o'clock, but almost all of them have signed the new agreement, and it went into effect immediately upon the expiration of the old one. The stores were closed as usual. No trouble is anticipated in getting all grocers and butchers to sign the article, and it is hardly probable the aid of Trades council will be solicited.

WANTS TO TEST A LAW

Contractor Sears Don't Like the Moving Ordinance.

WILL STAND AT THE BRIDGE

He Proposes to Move the Building From the Croxall Lot, and When He Reaches the Bridge of the Knowles Company He Will Look For Justice.

F. Sears, the contractor who is moving the building from the Croxall lot to Avondale street, does not like the ordinance recently passed by council in regard to the moving of buildings, and the ordinance may be tested.

In conversation with a reporter this morning he said: "That ordinance will not stand. In the first place a man can not get a house moved over a block in three days if he has a building that requires some care. The ordinance also provides that a passageway shall be left in the street for at least one team. Suppose the house covers the entire street, what is a man to do? The permit is all right, but they can't make a man give bond to travel the public highway. Some of the wires in this city are only 15 feet above the street when the law says they shall be at least 25 feet. I have been in a great many cities, but I never saw one where the streets were obstructed like they are here."

"I foresaw the trouble I would encounter in moving this house, and took the contract with the understanding that the party for whom I am doing the work would stand the responsibility. The ordinance does not cover this case, and when the house reaches the Knowles bridge, it will stay there until I receive some instructions. The company occupies two-thirds of the street, and I can certainly occupy the other part of it. Somebody will be held responsible for the damage to the building."

Mr. Sears will consult an attorney, and it is probable there will be some trouble before the question is settled.

TRULY A STRANGE TALE

A Mystery Cleared After Fifty-Five Years.

CAUSED BY A BANK ROBBERY

A Fanciful Writer Follows the Life of the Hermit of Dry Run, and Connects Him With One Who Has For Years Been Sought by Officers of Eastern Cities.

Not long ago some fanciful party residing at Marion wrote for the Cincinnati Enquirer what he pretended was a sketch of the adventurous life of the "Hermit of Dry Run." The question of fact or fiction matters little at this time, for the man is dead and beyond the reach of any authority, but the tale is at least interesting.

In the summer of 1842 the people of Bangor, Maine, were startled by the announcement that the Citizens' bank had been robbed of money and securities to the value of $180,000. No suspicion was attached to any of the employes, and the only clue was found in three links of a heavy gold chain which lay on the floor of the vault.

Bert Pelham, one of the keenest man hunters of the Boston force, was detailed and began work on the case. He was not long in reaching the conclusion that William Preston, a young man who had resided at Rockland, was the robber. Then began a chase which was continued through years. Preston was tracked to Boston and from there to Springfield. Thence he went to Montpelier, Vt., and the detective followed him to his hotel. A fight resulted, and when it ended Pelham lay senseless on the floor with a bullet in his shoulder and a great cut on his head.

Two months later the plucky detective had recovered sufficiently to continue the chase, and located Preston at Burlington. Preston recognized him, and hastily pulling his revolver fired. The shot missed and he ran with Pelham in close pursuit. When Preston reached Plattsburg, on the other side of the lake, his old enemy was stretched on the ice with a bullet hole in his neck.

As the story goes nothing was heard of Preston until September of 1865 when the northern regiments returned from the war. Then there came to East Liverpool a soldier whose clothes were new and clean and who expressed by his actions a desire to be left religiously alone. He remained at the hotel a few days, and then went to Dry Run near the Pennsylvania line where he purchased a plot of land and built the cabin where he lived for more than three years.

Occasionally he received visits from an old lady, but they were few and far between, and no one ever knew what words passed between them. He let everybody alone, and wanted no friends.

On one occasion when at Elkton, he was pressed by a half-drunken countryman to tell who he was and where he came from. After trying to avoid the fellow for some time, he at last became exasperated, and, drawing a revolver, told the insisting countryman he would kill him if he did not let him alone. But the verdant gentleman kept grabbing hold of the stranger, and finally received a blow from the butt end of a revolver which fractured his skull and came near killing him. After this incident all further attempts to ascertain the name or antecedents of the hermit were given up, and he was left alone, persons even avoiding the vicinity of his cabin near the river.

Not long ago he died, and the story of his life was told in letters he left on a chair by his humble cot. One was directed to Bertrand Pelham, but it did not reach him for he was dead. But it did go to his son, a leading physician of Boston, who read the confession it contained with interest. It told the story of his life after the robbery. How he had followed Pelham endeavoring to kill him, and when he failed how he enlisted in a New regiment and transformed the criminal into one of Grant's best and boldest scouts.

Other letters were directed to old friends in the east who had known him before the robbery, and who had long since ceased to believe him alive. The letter addressed to Rockland, Maine, was to a relative, and he gave him his library and all his relics, which he had collected during his years of exile and when in the army, among the latter a piece of the flag in which the body of Colonel Elmer E. Ellsworth was wrapped after his murder by Jackson at the Marshall House in Alexandria. The letter makes tender reference to his mother, and states that he has lived just the kind of a life he desired, as he wanted for nothing, and had no one to interfere with him.

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

A small parcel around which one letter was wrapped contained a box, and on being opened was found to contain a heavy gold chain, with some links gone, and a piece of stout cord united the two sections. The chain was attached to a small piece of white cardboard, and underneath appeared the following in pencil:

"The missing links of this chain I left in the Citizens' bank, of Bangor, Me., on the night of Aug. 12, 1842. The chain caught on the knob of the safe door as I was leaving the bank, and I had no time to secure the broken links."

WILLIAM PRESTON.

The three links had been turned over to the Baldwin bureau, with the history of the case some years ago, and when brought out of the relic department the chain was once more made whole after being parted for 54 years.

CLOSED AS USUAL.

Although the Grocers' Early Closing Agreement Was Dead.

Last night marked the close of the old agreement among the grocers to close their places of business at 7 o'clock, but almost all of them have signed the new agreement, and it went into effect immediately upon the expiration of the old one. The stores were closed as usual. No trouble is anticipated in getting all grocers and butchers to sign the article, and it is hardly probable the aid of Trades council will be solicited.

WANTS TO TEST A LAW

Contractor Sears Don't Like the Moving Ordinance.

WILL STAND AT THE BRIDGE

He Proposes to Move the Building From the Croxall Lot, and When He Reaches the Bridge of the Knowles Company He Will Look For Justice.

F. Sears, the contractor who is moving the building from the Croxall lot to Avondale street, does not like the ordinance recently passed by council in regard to the moving of buildings, and the ordinance may be tested.

In conversation with a reporter this morning he said: "That ordinance will not stand. In the first place a man can not get a house moved over a block in three days if he has a building that requires some care. The ordinance also provides that a passageway shall be left in the street for at least one team. Suppose the house covers the entire street, what is a man to do? The permit is all right, but they can't make a man give bond to travel the public highway. Some of the wires in this city are only 15 feet above the street when the law says they shall be at least 25 feet. I have been in a great many cities, but I never saw one where the streets were obstructed like they are here.

"I foresaw the trouble I would encounter in moving this house, and took the contract with the understanding that the party for whom I am doing the work would stand the responsibility. The ordinance does not cover this case, and when the house reaches the Knowles bridge, it will stay there until I receive some instructions. The company occupies two-thirds of the street, and I can certainly occupy the other part of it. Somebody will be held responsible for the damage to the building."

Mr. Sears will consult an attorney, and it is probable there will be some trouble before the question is settled.

DANGER OF EPIDEMIC

Does Not Alarm Superintendent Southworth.

ONLY ONE CASE OF FEVER

All the Others Have Recovered, and the Stricken Child Is Getting Along as Well as Could Be Expected—Only Four Little Ones Were Ill.

The scare which followed the announcement that scarlet fever had broken out at Fairmount home has disappeared with the fever.

Superintendent Southworth placed in the hospital the Dickey children, who were sent there from this county, and a strict quarantine was maintained, but it was feared the children had come in contact with so many others that it would spread. This fear, however, proved to be groundless, for the fever was confined to the four patients already mentioned and not another case developed. They were given the best of care and attention, and all have recovered but one. That child is getting along nicely and will soon be well.

Hon. David Boyce was at the home yesterday attending the regular meeting of the board. No business of unusual importance was transacted.

A NIGHT OFFICE.

Too Much Freight to Be Handled Without It.

A night telegraph office has been opened by the Cleveland and Pittsburg company in this city, and the first messages were received last evening.

The company was compelled to take this step, as the amount of freight now handled in the yards is the largest in the history of the office in this place. Last night the pony crew worked in the yards until 12:30 o'clock, this being the latest they have worked here for many months. The office is known as W. N. tower, and is located near the Wallace & Chetwynd plant. It is open in the daytime, but never before was worked at night.

The railroad company has but four night offices on the river division, Rochester, Industry, W. N. tower and Wellsville shops. Yellow Creek is counted on the main line.

PROGRESSING RAPIDLY

Are the Needed Improvements at City Hall.

Improvements about city hall are progressing rapidly, and a number of changes are being made that were not taken into consideration when the work was let. The stone masons yesterday began to repair the steps leading to the building. They will be widened several inches. The plasterers started work this morning. The floor in the mayor's old office has been taken up and new one laid. The second coat of paint has been finished, and the painters tomorrow will begin to put on the last coat. All the outside painting will be finished by Friday. It is expected the entire work will be completed by Oct. 16.

FIRES ON THE BRANCH.

They Made Abundant Work For Railroad Men.

The Panhandle work train was called to the New Cumberland branch to put out good sized fires that had started on the hillsides. They had to cut down a number of trees which were on fire to get them off the wires. The underbrush and dry weeds made fires that were very hot and dangerous.

The hills are so dry that fires are expected, and Cleveland and Pittsburg section men are keeping a sharp look out all along the line.

NOTHING TO DO.

The Township Trustees Are Taking a Needed Rest.

The township trustees have at last reached the conclusion that their positions are not all work and no play as the events of several years led them to believe.

They have almost nothing to do. Business is dead in their line. Applicants for aid are very few and far between, and their wants are soon satisfied. This is in marked contrast to the condition which prevailed at this time last year.

Stopped Work.

The water works employes yesterday started the work of removing the mains at the Laughlin pottery. Operations were later stopped, and nothing more will be done until the road is located, and it is determined who shall bear the expense of the removal.

Local Men Want to Manufacture Ware.

COMPANY NOW BEING FORMED

They Will Locate Where They Can Obtain the Best Bonus and There Are Good Prospects of Success—Seven Parties Are Interested.

A number of well known business and professional men of the city have caught the fever of investment, and are organizing a company to manufacture pottery under a new system.

The idea is said to be something for which potters have long been striving, and consists of a great saving in the preparation of the clay. It was perfected recently by a young man, of this city, who laid his plans before a few friends, and it was decided to push the matter. The sum of $2,000 was allotted to each man, and already seven have been found who are willing to put in that amount. They want three others, and then with a capital of $20,000 they will negotiate with enterprising towns for the plant. It is known that Columbus would pay a neat sum for an industry of that kind, and other towns of less importance are only waiting for some one to come their way with an offer.

The members of the company will not allow the use of their names at present, but they are prominent among the business and professional men of the city, and declare they all mean business. They will locate the plant here in preference to any other place, if they can receive the right kind of an inducement, but if Liverpool is slow and other towns anxious, we are not at present to be considered.

There will probably be no game of football this week, as Manager Rose has not yet succeeded in booking a team. All members who do not show up for practice on regular nights will be released.

IN THE HOMES

Where Sample & Neal's shoes are worn there is a general satisfaction. There is comfort in our shoes, because we are careful to buy good shapes; and we are careful in the fitting of them. There is lots of service in them, too, because we aim to carry makes that we know to be reliable. We don't want to sell shoddy goods, because they will not make future business, and its business we want and have been getting, and it's because we sell good shoes, and because we sell them at such low prices. Our good shoes will cost you about the same as the most of shoddy ones so generally sold. Don't fail to ask for the
